FM CHANNEL 231

By Way of Experiment . . .

Discussions—confrontations of opinion against opinion, belief against belief—are perhaps the most important single form of public affairs programming. Here, in the spontaneity of interchange, an event of thought happens. In a scripted talk, the event of thought happened as the script was written, is recollected in the delivery for broadcast. Other factors being equal, that which happens is better radio than that which has happened.

But discussions have their hazards. Interchange can become an indiscriminate milling around. The coinage of assumptions is subject to sudden devaluations, flux, and general confusion. The prepared talk, a single traceable line of individual thought, usually avoids these hazards of discussion.

With the general hope of having one's cake and eating it too, we've been experimenting with the program schedule. A talk sets the subject out. Then, later that evening there is a discussion on that same subject. In this folio period, Wednesday, July 14th includes a talk on American Indians recorded for KPFA in Santa Fe by Oliver La Farge, followed later in the evening by a discussion of the issues he raises. On Monday, July 19th, there will be some similar programming on the nature of religious conversion and its relationship to psychotherapy.

Admittedly, this kind of programming may make listening, on two evenings at least, episodic for those who care neither for American Indians or religious conversion. But such are the hazards of program selection, and the ranges of KPFA's fare.

Special Program Notes

PREMIERE: On Friday, July 16, at 9:40 p.m., we shall broadcast the recording of Harry Partch's new version of Oedipus. The first version of this work was produced at Mills College in March of 1952, but because of textual copyright restrictions, could not be issued on records. Since then Mr. Partch has produced a text version of his own, and has extensively rewritten the score—in fact, he has created two new instruments to accommodate the new score. The present recording was made possible through a subscription effort by a group organized for that purpose. Of his intention, Harry Partch has written, in part, "My idea here has been to present the drama expressed by language, not to obscure it, either by operatic aria or symphonic instrumentation . . . Tone of spoken word and tone of instrument combine in a compact emotional or dramatic expression, each providing its singular ingredient."

MUSICAL NOTE: Two nineteenth-century composers whose path toward recognition has been particularly thorny will have extensive opportunity to state their cases during this folio period. The first is Hugo Wolf, brilliant and erratic composer of songs and very little else, whose music will be sung by Henrietta Harris on the July 23rd Studio Concert. The second is Hector Berlioz, brilliant and erratic composer of music in almost all forms, whose tender and moving Christmas oratorio will be played on Sunday the 25th.
